

1 REMARKS

2 Status of Application

3 Claims 12-16 and 26 remain pending in the present application, Claim 17 having been 4 previously canceled, and Claims 1-11 and 18-25 having been canceled without prejudice, subject to 5 applicants' right to file a continuation application directed to the subject matter thereof during the 6 pendency of the present application.

7 Allowable Subject Matter

8 The Examiner has indicated that Claims 12-16 and 26 are allowed. From the remarks filed on 9 April 28, 2005, the Examiner finds the arguments concerning Claim 12 and those claims dependent 10 on Claim 12 to be persuasive. Particularly, the Kanevsky reference, in the situation where a device is 11 incapable of displaying all available content, employs a hyperlink when a content portion of lower 12 priority does not fit with a content portion of higher priority. This is in contrast to the applicant's 13 invention, which does not employ a hyperlink to display the information, but only displays those 14 portions that can be fully displayed as expressed in Claim 12.

15 Claims Rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e)

16 The Examiner has rejected Claims 1-9, 11, and 18-25 as being anticipated by U.S. Patent 17 No. 6,300,947 (Kanevsky). However, since Claims 1-9, 11, and 18-25 have been canceled, 18 applicants respectfully request that the Examiner withdraw the rejection, since it is now moot.

19 Claims Rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a)

20 Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kanevsky in view of 21 U.S. Patent No. 6,098,096 (Tsirigotis et al., hereinafter "Tsirigotis"). However, since Claim 10 has 22 been canceled, applicants respectfully request that the Examiner withdraw the rejection, which is now 23 moot.

1 In view of the amendment canceling all rejected claims, it will be apparent that the claims
2 remaining in this application, which define a novel and non-obvious invention, are patentable.
3 Accordingly, this application should be passed to issue without delay. Should any further questions
4 remain, the Examiner is invited to telephone applicants' attorney at the number listed below.

5 Respectfully submitted,
